Death of Gallant Col. W. H. Long.

His Brilliant Military Record During the Rebellion.

Promoted for Bravery and Commissioned by Lincoln's Own Hand.

The death of Col. William H. Long, at 7.30 a. m. yesterday at his residence, 17 Walnut street, Chelsea, is sincerely felt in business and military circles of this city.

Col. Long for years has been in the service of Jordan, Marsh & Co., occupying a responsible position and winning the esteem of firm, employes and patrons.

COL. W. H. LONG.

Col. Long had been for some years a sufferer from diabetes, an ailment contracted during an honorable military career, and recently complained of complications which indicated neuralgia of the chest.

Unfortunately the fears aroused by those symptoms were justified, inasmuch as they boded heart trouble of organic severity.

William Hale Long was born in New York city, Feb. 22, 1835.

At the age of 15 he went to sea, remaining three years in that service. On his return he engaged in the hardware business with his father, finally settling at Penn Yan, N. Y.

At the breaking out of the war he became second lieutenant of the 53d New York Infantry, which was organized with headquarters at Elmira, his commission dating May 14, 1861.

Dec. 27, 1861, he was promoted to first lieutenant. He was discharged Oct. 16, 1862, to accept his promotion as captain and assistant adjutant-general, United States Volunteers, this commission dating from the above period.

For brave and gallant conduct at Fort Stevens, near Washington, D. C., he was, Sept. 9, 1864, made major and assistant adjutant-general.

This was during one of Confederate Early's periodical raids, and President Lincoln, who was a spectator of the fierce repulse given the enemy, and Col. Long's personal daring, personally bestowed on the latter the commission, which was cherished ever afterward as a souvenir of great price.

Had the officer been made a general by the usual methods, he could not have felt as proud as he did of the honor which was conferred by the head of the nation.

Oct. 19, 1864, the gallant major, for brave and meritorious services during the campaign before Richmond, Va., and in the Shenandoah valley, was made a brevet lieutenant-colonel, U. S. V.

Then, for a third time, which was at the assault before Petersburg, Va., he showed his valor and received therefor a promotion as brevet colonel, U. S. V., April 2, 1865.

Sept. 19, of the latter year, he was mustered out of the service after a military career that was creditable alike to himself and to the republic whose honor he upheld on many a hard-fought field.

During his military services he was provost marshal under Gen. Brooks, aid-de-camp to Gen. Davidson; assigned to duty under Gen. Vinton, 3d Brigade, 2d Division, 6th Corps, Army of the Potomac.

When Gen. Neill took command of that brigade Col. Long became his assistant adjutant-general.

Col. Long became a first-class member of the Loyal Legion, April 5, 1876.

Shortly after the war he came to Boston and entered the employ of Jordan, Marsh & Co., then in Winthrop square, as salesman in the print department.

In a short time he was entrusted with the handling of raw cotton for the firm. Later he became the credit man of the house, a position of such importance that many believed him to be a member of the firm.

Up to within a period of several years he was connected with his father in the hardware trade in New York, but at the latter's death the business was discontinued.

About 20 years ago Col. Long married an estimable Bangor lady, a daughter being born to them.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF COLONEL W. H. LONG

William Hale Long was born in New York City, February 22, 1835. At the age of fifteen he went to sea, remaining three years in that service. On his return he engaged in the hardware business with his father, Nathaniel R. Long, finally settling in Penn Yan.

THE MILITARY HISTORY OF YATES COUNTY

At the breaking out of the war he became Second Lieutenant of Company I, Thirty-third New York Infantry, his commission dating May 14, 1861. He was promoted to First Lieutenant on the 27th of December following. He was discharged on the 16th of October, 1862, to accept his promotion as Captain and Assistant Adjutant General of Volunteers.

For brave and gallant conduct at Fort Stevens, near Washington, D. C, he was (September 6, 1864) promoted to Major. This was during one of the Confederate General Early's periodical raids, and President Lincoln, who was a spectator of the fierce repulse given the enemy, and of the bravery displayed on this occasion by Captain Long, personally bestowed upon the latter the commission, which was cherished ever after as a souvenir of inestimable value. Had he (as he said) been made a General by the usual methods, he could not have felt as proud as he did of the honor which was conferred by the head of the Nation.

On the 19th of October, 1864, he was made a Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel for brave and meritorious service during the campaign before Richmond and in the Shenandoah Valley. For bravery in the assault before Petersburg he received a promotion as Brevet-Colonel, April 2, 1865. On the 19th of September of the latter year, he was mustered out, after a military career that was creditable alike to himself and to the republic, whose honor he upheld on many a hard-fought field.

During his term of service, he was Provost-Marshal under General Brooks; aid-de-camp to General Davidson; assigned to duty under General Vinton, of the Third Brigade, Sixth Corps, Army of the Potomac. When General Neill took command of that brigade. Colonel Long became his Assistant Adjutant-General.

Shortly after the close of the war Colonel Long came to Boston, Mass., and entered the employ of Jordan, Marsh & Co., a wholesale and retail firm then located on Winthrop Square in that city. He was married in 1870 to Miss Carrie Mason, of Bangor, Maine, and a daughter named Winifred was born to them.

Colonel Long became a first-class member of the Massachusetts Commandery of the Loyal Legion April 5, 1876. He remained in the employ of Jordan, Marsh & Co. until the time of his decease, which occurred April 7, 1890, at his home at Chelsea, near Boston.

*In grateful acknowledgement of this honorable remembrance a beautiful silk flag of regulation size, 6x6 feet, was presented to this Post by the widow and daughter of Colonel Long; also, the coat, vest, hat, sash, and spurs worn by the Colonel at the time of his muster-out, together with two order books. These appropriate gifts were received October 23, 1895.

Antietam after battle report:

Report of Lieut col. Joseph W. Corning, Thirty-third New York Infantry, of the battles of Crampton's Pass and Antietam.

CAMP IN THE FIELD, September 20, 1862. SIR: In obedience to orders, I have the honor to report that the Thirty-third Regiment New York Volunteers, near sunset on the 14th instant, marched from their position east of Burkittsville, with the other troops of the Third Brigade, for Crampton's Pass. During a portion of the march, we were briskly shelled from the rebel battery on the mountain. The regiment continued the march steadily and in admirable order. We ascended the mountain and marched to the left to support the Second Brigade, but were soon ordered to return to the road, and crossed over to the west side of the mountain, and bivouacked at the base for the night. On the 15th took 7 prisoners. Remained at Pleasant Valley until the morning of the 17th. Marched at 6 o'clock a. m. Upon arriving in front of the battle-field of Antietam Creek, I was ordered to form in rear of and support the left of the brigade line, but just as they were engaging the enemy, I received orders from the commanding division general to support the left of the brigade line, but just as they were engaging the enemy, I received orders from the commanding division general to support the right, and was ordered to march near the woods in front. When near the woods the enemy suddenly and unexpectedly opened on the regiment a heavy fire from their infantry, who were in the woods, being in columns at the time, marching by the right flank. This sudden and unexpected attack caused a momentary unsteadiness in the ranks, which was quickly rectified. The battalion faced by the rear rank and returned the fire, when, by order of the commanding general, the regiment retired a short distance, under cover of a ridge, and formed the right of the line of the brigade, where they remained during the day, under very severe cannonading from the enemy. We were relieved from this front on the 19th, about 10 o'clock.

The officers and men under my command behaved as well as could be expected of any troops under such trying circumstances, and with great steadiness kept their position during the day. The casualties of the 17th were 6 killed and 41 wounded. Among the killed I have to regret the loss of Sergt. Maj. George W. Bassett, a very efficient and gallant officer.

Respectfully submitted.

JOS. W. CORNING,
Lieut.-Col., Commanding the Regiment.

William Hale Long Civil War maps

The Huntington Library, San Marino, California

A collection of 15 manuscript maps and sketches drawn by William Hale Long which detail various areas and battles during the American Civil War; the maps and sketches focus on Northern Virginia and cover the years from 1862 to 1865. The material is a historical resource for the history of the campaigns and illustrate the progress of the war in this area as well as its conclusion. Long led various reconnaissance and these maps were used by him for this work. The material also serves as documentation for the reconstruction of the action for these battles and campaigns. The maps were originally folded and stored in a Morocco case, but are now flattened and placed in 15 individual folders.

William Hale Long (1835-1890) was a Union officer during the American Civil War. Long was born in New York City and at the age of fifteen went to sea for three years; upon his return, Long worked in the hardware business with his father, Nathaniel R. Long. BIOGRAPHIES OF THE OFFICERS.

CAPTAIN EDWARD E. ROOT,

Co. I, was born in Washington County, August 24th, 1839. Removed at an early age to Yates County. After spending several years at the Prattsburg Academy and Rochester Commercial College, he became employed in the Stationery House of George R. Cornwell, Penn Yan, as confidential clerk. Was elected First Lieutenant of Co. I, on its organization, and promoted to Captain, December 27th, 1861. He received a severe wound in the left thigh while leading his Company in the charge on Marye's Heights. For several weeks his life was despaired of, but after lying two months in the hospital, he recovered sufficiently to return home.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM HALE LONG,

Co. I, was born in New York City, February 22nd, 1835. At fifteen years of age went to sea. Returned in three years; engaged in mercantile pursuits till the outbreak of the rebellion, then joined the Seventh Massachusetts as a private. Was afterwards elected Second Lieutenant Fifth New York, and a few days succeeding, Second Lieutenant, Co. I, Thirty-third. After being promoted to First Lieutenant, served as Provost Marshal under General Brooks, and as Aid-de-Camp to General Davidson. October, 1862, was promoted to Captain, and A. A. General, and assigned to duty under General Vinton. Remained with him until General Neill took Command of the Brigade, when he became his A. A. General.

FIRST LIEUTENANT GEORGE BRENNAN,

Co. I, was born in Penn Yan, December 18th, 1838.

remained until becoming Co. H. of the Thirty-third N. Y., when they were transferred to the barracks. Captain Walker being chosen Lieut-Colonel of the Thirty-third, Lieutenant Platner was promoted to Captain, Lieutenant Drake to 1st Lieutenant, and S. C. Niles to 2nd Lieutenant.

COMPANY I.

IMMEDIATELY after the President's proclamation calling for 75,000 volunteers reached Penn Yan, a meeting was called at Washington Hall. General A. F. Whitaker presided, and George R. Cornwell was Secretary. Several addresses were made, and the session continued till a late hour. A roll was presented, and thirty-four names obtained.

On Thursday evening, April 25th, a much larger gathering was held, bands of music parading the streets and playing patriotic airs. Resolutions were adopted to raise a company of volunteers, and recruits came forward freely. After the County Union assembly on Saturday, April 27th, the Finance Committee appointed at that meeting, Messrs. E. B. Jones, C. C. Sheppard, D. A. Ogden, and F. Holmes, circulated a subscription to raise funds to provide for the families of volunteers.

On the ninth day of May, 1861, the Company, which at this time was known as the "Kenka Rifles," was inspected by Major John E. Bean, of Geneva, and mustered into the State service. On the same day an election was held for officers, resulting as follows:

Captain—JAMES M. LETTS.

First Lieutenant—EDWARD E. ROOT.

Second Lieutenant—WILLIAM H. LONG.

The Company continued to drill under its officers until receiving orders to go into camp at Elmira, on the 18th of May. On that day the Company departed, being escorted to the Railroad Depot by the firemen and citizens. A large concourse was assembled, and the ladies of Penn Yan presented a beautiful flag to the Company, which was addressed by Hon. D. A. Ogden and Mr. E. B. Jones. Each member was also presented with a Testament. Up to this period every effort had been made by the citizens of Penn Yan and vicinity to assist in its organization and contribute to the success of the command. This patriotic zeal extended to all classes, but to none more than to the ladies, who rendered every assistance and attention to the men. On their arrival at Elmira they were quartered in Rev. T. K. Beecher's church, and on the 24th May became Company I of the Thirty-third Regiment of New York State Volunteers. On the 3rd July, 1861, it was mustered into the United States service by Captain Sitgreaves, and from that time its history became identified with that of the Regiment.

COMPANY K.

AMERICANS will ever remember with gratitude the patriotism displayed by our adopted fellow citizens, during the progress of the great uprising.

GENERAL ORDERS PERTAINING TO THE ARMY.

PICKET DUTY.

THIS most important feature, for the safety of an army, is perhaps the least understood of all that appertains to the art of war. As the same system is germain to all armies, the following explanation will, no doubt, be acceptable in this volume, as the duty has been seldom described, though often spoken of, in the numerous details of midnight attacks, and skirmishes. In the disposition of, say two hundred men, they go forth to a point designated as the grand reserve, varying in distance from two hundred rods to nearly a mile from the outer or picket line, where are left half of the number as a reserve, in case the pickets are driven in, and also for mutual relief in their fatiguing duties (often out on picket for three days). Then, to the right and nearer the line, is stationed an officer and forty-eight men, who immediately relieve the line of men (who are out in front) sixteen in number, leaving thirty-two men on the support, so-called—or two more reliefs, relieving each other every two hours; the same on the left support.

When six hours have passed, the three reliefs on each support having stood on post their two hours each, the Grand Reserve sends out the ninety-six men who have been resting—forty-eight to each support—they, in turn, going through the same routine—the first ninety-six men going back to the main reserve to rest, &c. Thus the whole thing is systematized, the Grand Reserve and the supports alternately relieving each other, until the whole time for which they are detailed, expires, when another detail from some other Regiment relieves the whole picket. The Picket Guard is always commanded by a Staff Officer. The following is a specimen of an order from Brigade Headquarters, detailing a Picket Guard from the Thirty-third Regiment:

HEADQUARTERS 3D BRIGADE, }
2D DIVISION, 6TH CORPS. }

(Special Orders.)

Ten Commissioned Officers, fifty Non-Commissioned Officers, and three hundred and fifty Privates, will be detailed from the Thirty-third Regiment N. Y. S. Volunteers, for Picket Guards, and will mount at 9.30 A. M.

MAJOR JOHN S. PLATNER, 33d N. Y. S. V., and ASSISTANT-SURGEON RICHARD CURRAN, of the same Regiment, will accompany the detail, which is to remain on duty for three successive days.

Grand Guard Mounting will be had according to Butterfield's System, on which a Division Staff Officer will perform the duties of Assistant-Adjutant-General of Brigade, and a Brigade Staff Officer will act as Regimental Adjutant. By command of

BRIG. GENERAL THOS. H. NEILL.

I take pleasure

Captain Long has been in service since April made an Asst. Adj. General U.S.A. for bravery and gallant been recommended for "Brevels", and during the present campaign in the various battles in the Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, and in front of Petersburg, and more particularly at the Fort Stevens skirmish near the City of Washington, he added much to the success of this Brigade by his brave and gallant conduct in front of the Enemy.
